

I am very grateful to Prof. Dr. Jean-Jacques Cassiman and his team for the fellowship, friendly and flexible work approach, which enabled me to attend practical Cancer Genetics course in Royal Marsden Hospital. The course was well structured, highly interactive and consisted of two modules, situated two months apart, with an integration of Moodle distant learning system and multiple-answer quiz. The course was mainly designed for genetic cancer counsellors or nurses. Personally, as a genetic resident doctor with an interest in cancer genetics and molecular testing, that more psychological approach to counselling process, encompassing complexities of family dynamics and complex families and ethical/psychological issues in cancer genetics, was very useful addition to my practical skills. It also helped me opportunity critically analyse and evaluate the prophylactic and treatment options for high risk individuals and their families.

Sincerely Yours,
